NEW England Mutual Life Ins.,
Of Boston, Mass., Chartered in 1843,
Capital and accumulation, $650,000.

THIS Company is one of the oldest, and among the most prudently and successfully conducted in the country. The primary object in conducting its business has been to provide perfect security under all conceivable circumstances for the payment of its losses under its policies, and to return to the insured the surplus at stated periods, and strict economy is observed.

Every insured person is a member of the company and shares in the profits of the business, and is subject to no liability or assessments beyond his premium.

The directors are required to be peculiarly interested in the company, and they give it their personal attention; and bonds of sufficient security are given by its officers for the faithful performance of their duties.

Insurance may be effected for the benefit of the wife which is secured to her by law beyond the reach of a husband's creditors; and creditors may insure the lives of debtors.

Highly Important to Farmers.
THE ONLY EXCLUSIVE FARMERS' INSURANCE COMPANY IN THE WEST.

THE MADISON MUTUAL,
LOCATED AT MADISON, WISCONSIN.

THIS Company continues to take risks upon Farm Property only, consisting of buildings of all kinds, (belonging to farmers,) household furniture, grain in barns, live stock, &c., from one to five years, at lower rates than most other responsible companies.

All losses promptly paid at the office as soon as proof is made thereon.

We believe it to be for the interest of the farmers to insure by themselves, their property being less hazardous than any other, consequently you will have no losses under your own of the same class, and all will be on an equal footing.

Experience has shown that two-thirds, if not three-fourths of all the fires that occur are upon stores, taverns, mills, shops and such like property. In this company all such property is rejected positively, by LETTING THEM ALONE.

Farmers, look to your own interest, and insure in a Farmers' Company.

We have been doing business a little over three years, and we have not been obliged to assess our premium notes, and for the last fourteen months we have not had a single dollar loss, though doing a large and prosperous business, which we believe to be without a parallel in the history of insurance.

The best of references given as to the responsibility of the company.

New England Mutual Life Ins.,
Of Boston, Mass., chartered in 1843, Capital and accumulation, $650,000.

THIS Company is one of the oldest, and among the most prudently and successfully conducted in the country. The primary object in conducting its business has been to provide perfect security under all conceivable circumstances, for the payment of its losses under its policies, and to return to the insured the surplus at stated periods, and strict economy is observed.

Every insured person is a member of the company and shares in the profits of the business, and is subject to no liability or assessments beyond his premium.

The directors are required to be peculiarly interested in the company, and they give their personal attention; and bonds of sufficient security are given by their officers for the faithful performance of their duties.

Insurance may be effected for the benefit of the wife, which is secured to her by law beyond the reach of a husband's creditors; and creditors may insure the lives of debtors.

Highly Important to Farmers.
THE ONLY EXCLUSIVE FARMERS' INSURANCE COMPANY IN THE WEST.

THE MADISON MUTUAL,
LOCATED AT MADISON, WISCONSIN.

THIS Company continues to take risks upon Farm Property only, consisting of buildings of all kinds, (belonging to farmers,) household furniture, grain in barns, live stock, &c., from one to five years, at low or rather more than other responsible companies.

All losses promptly paid at the office as soon as proof is made thereon.

We believe it to be for the interest of the farmers to insure by themselves, their property being less hazardous than any other, consequently they will have no losses, only from the same class, and all will be on an equal footing.

Experience has shown that two-thirds, if not three-fourths, of all the fires that occur are upon stores, taverns, mills, shops and such like property. In this company all such property is rejected positively, by LETTING THEM ALONE.

Farmers, look to your own interest, and insure in a Farmers' company.

We have been doing business a little over three years, and we have not been obliged to assess our premium notes, and for the last fourteen months we have not had a single dollar loss, thereby offering to farmers a prospect of success, which we believe to be without a parallel in the history of insurance.

The best of references given as to the responsibility of the company.

A STORE FOR SALE OR TO LET.
THE STORE and a Lot of ground known as Lot No. 8, on Block No. 1, in the village and township of EAU CLAIRE, Rock County, on the Catholic, near its confluence with Rock river, 11 miles northwest of Janesville.

The building is well calculated for a country store, being 32 feet from by 62 feet deep, and finished off above into convenient apartments either for a family or for offices, all in good condition.

The whole has been occupied for three years past by Messrs. T. E. and F. G. Green, as a store and dwelling, and being situated immediately opposite the Gratiotville, is considered the best location for business in the village. The lot is two rods front by about seven rods deep.

THE "PATENT SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON" combines economy, convenience, saving of labor, neatness and dispatch. One cent's worth of dry charcoal supplies fuel for a whole day's constant ironing. In the absence of charcoal, hard wood coals will answer the same purpose. Its employment is as well adapted to one room as another, or the open air. Those who use them are relieved from the excessive fatigue of placing the irons at the fire, and the exhausting heat of the room. Its use is not accompanied by the possibility of smutting the clothes, and leaves a finish and gloss unsurpassed. One half more can be done with it in the same time, and with less labor. In short, this invention keeps pace with the age of railroads, a cashmere and telegraphs. Its great leading idea being economy, convenience and saving of labor; and this invention has it in perfection. The batteries and tailors irons are constructed upon the same principle and possess equal superiority. Our friend Col. Saxe has the exclusive right to sell by wholesale in this state, Indiana and Michigan. None but his agents will be authorized to sell them. The patentees are Messrs. Cummings and Bliss, and their extensive manufacturing is at Newark, New Jersey. This practical invention was patented in 1852, and in England, France, Belgium and Germany. In 1853, and it is now being adopted, extensively, and we believe will soon find a place in all economical and appreciating families. After seeing fifty or sixty notices of this invention in the New England papers, (where it is now generally used,) also New York and Ohio papers, we select the following from the New York Observer, as being quite correct and plainly descriptive of this new article:

A SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON.—A new invention of this description has been submitted to our inspection and has been used by those in our service. It is somewhat larger than the ordinary flat-iron, and has a long and higher handle. The body of the iron is hollow, and so constructed as to hold a small quantity of ignited charcoal. A small damper at one extremity regulates the draft, and a little pipe at the other conveys away the imperceptible fume that is generated. It is so arranged, that its supply of coal, small as it is, occupies one and a half or two hours in consumption, and keeps the iron for that length of time at a temperature, admitting of uninterrupted use. The bottom of the iron is beautifully smooth and highly polished. The advantages consist, 1st, in economy, one cent's worth of dry charcoal furnishing fuel for a whole day's ironing. 2d, Convenience, it being independent of a stove or furnace, and therefore capable of being used in any part of the house. 3d, Saving of labor in avoiding the constantly recurring necessity of carrying the iron to and from the fire. 4th, Avoiding the lice nofts of a hot room. 5th, Facilitating neatness, the hot iron being soiled by contact with the fire, but always retaining its perfect gloss. 6th, Dispatch, it involving a saving of all the time which is otherwise lost in exchanging the irons and keeping them in proper order. A bare inspection of the implement will satisfy any one that it is a decided improvement, and our only surprise is that it has not been thought of before. We hear the most favorable accounts of it from those who have employed it.

The above article may be found for sale at the hardware store of R. J. Richardson.

The mills have not yet got fairly to work on the new crop, but a beginning has been made. They are buying wheat, and paying high prices. We brought up a sample of white winter wheat to our office, for which $1.40 had been paid. If this does not hurry up the farmers who live near the city, and on the great thoroughfares to send or bring their wheat to market, we do not know what will. Some four or five hundred barrels of new flour have been ground this week, and we understand all the mills will go into operation on Monday, when business will be lively on the canal.—Wisconsin, Saturday.

BULL VS. BEAR.—The Grass Valley Telegraph has the following:

"The bull and bear fight at Iowa Hill, on the 4th of July, was equal to the most sanguine expectation. Experienced vaqueros placed the animals in the ring without difficulty. The bull was wild, and the bear grizzly of large size, was caught a few weeks since. The instant the animals beheld each other they made a spring, the bear raising himself to strike, and the bull lowering his head for a plunge. The contest was tremendous, and in about twenty minutes the bull, with one ear bitten off, his nose torn and neck severely mangled, laid his ferocious adversary completely dead in the centre of the arena. The owner of the bull now offers to let him fight any bear not exceeding him in weight, that can be produced, for a wager of any sum between $1,000 and $5,000.

N. P. Willis has retired from the Home Journal, and in his valedictory announces that he has no longer any hope of recovering his health.—His disease is consumption.

DERANGED MAILS.—We saw at the post office this morning, 14 canvas bags filled with bound books, and addressed to Augustus Caesar Dodge of Burlington, Iowa.

No wonder mails are deranged when they are burdened with whole libraries. Augustus Caesar Dodge, however, having met his Brutus, we shall not hear of him from him hereafter.—Chicago Journal, 16th.

THE CALIFORNIA INDIAN RESERVATION has become a scene of singular prosperity. The Indians appear to work with the utmost cheerfulness and alacrity in their various occupations, of driving teams, feeding threshing machines, attending the crops, etc. Their wheat crop is enormous, averaging thirty-five bushels to the acre, and estimated to be worth, according to prices at Los Angeles, from $300,000 to $400,000. Indians arrive daily in small parties from various parts of the state, and though each tribe speaks a different dialect, they thrive harmoniously together; such a thing as a quarrel or fight never happening among them. Capt. P. E. Conner, in a recent letter from the reservation, says that a happier set of beings than these Indians, it has never been his lot to see.

"Far up the heavens rolled the flames of the house and barn; and the waving flags in the region knew how it must be, but there was none to help. Slowly up into the back country were walking, as day began to dawn, Harvey Loomis and Joseph Collins. They had stopped to embrace, to weep, and to laugh more than once. "I was nobly done, Harvey; but when you first tinkled the bell, what did you expect?" "I was in hopes you would recollect the old bell at once, and smell it out, and at a single bound come to me."

"Well, I did not—I was sent. But when I got there, why did you fire your gun in my face and knock my lantern out of my hand?" "I put out your light to make it dark, you know; and I fired the gun, so that if you had been taken, they might suppose you were taken as a prisoner, and not hang you as a deserter."

"You cunning fellow! what if they had taken you?"

"Hanging on the yard-arm of course; I had made up my mind for that."

"Noble fellow! may God reward you, I never can. Well now you go home, Harvey, and tell Lucy—and watch her closely—if she's got her heart on any other point of the compass be faithful and let me know it. I will go and show myself to father and mother, and if I don't hear from you, I shall be at your house by ten o'clock. Mind now about Lucy!"

"Get out, you jealous fellow; it's more than half because I love Lucy that I have had my neck smelt of hemp for the last six months!"

That morning after breakfast as usual, old Mr. Collins had read in the presence of his wife and little Molly, an orphan child of color, the word of God, and then they knelt in prayer. Just as he was about to kneel, the old parrot cried out, "Joseph! oh Joseph! and Lucy Loomis too!"

The words meant nothing in the mouth of the bird, but they led the train of his thoughts in that channel. After praying for things which filled the heart, he asked, "And now, oh Lord! remember, we beseech thee, our poor wanderer, if he be still in the land of the living; whether on the land or on the deep, in the hospital or in the prison, oh remember him. We would pray, in all submission, that we may see his face once more and lean upon him as the staff of our age; but if this may never be, our prayer is that we may meet him in heaven, to part with him no more!"

While the good old man was thus praying, with many tears, the door softly opened, and the young man stood within it. When the family rose from their knees, there stood their son bathed in tears! The old man lifted up his hands in utter amazement, but the mother sobbed, "My son! my son!" and fell upon his neck.

A few hours after this there was a group gathered at Mr. John Loomis's, who came with a kind of trembling as men might be supposed to feel who were conscious of being in a dream and were afraid of being awakened. There were old Mr. Collins and wife, who contrived to keep near their son as if afraid he might escape, or change into something besides himself. Then there were old Mr. Loomis and wife, who felt a quiet joy in sympathizing with those whose emotions were deep. Harvey said he believed he felt as foolish as did Tossy, when in his puppyhood he chased something and it turned out to be a real com. As for Miss Lucy, she tried hard to be a real com and quiet, but the color would come and go, and she felt nervous and restless, and had no command of herself till she had gone out and had a good joyful time of weeping. Harvey was the first hero, and he had to relate how he had heard a rumor that Joseph was in some ship on our coast, and that he had visited every ship that had come into the sound under pretense of selling something.

"It has all turned out right," said he, "except the burning of deacon Mayo's house and barn. I feel grieved to think I was probably the cause of that—by showing the cattle and enticing them ashore."

"You take to yourself too much credit," said Joseph, "for the orders were given to land and search for cattle and fire the buildings before you showed the cattle; that I can testify."

"Very good—for though some of us wanted you back, I don't know as any one would have subscribed a whole barn," said Harvey looking archly at Lucy.

"I think you have just made it out that one life was hazarded," replied Lucy.

"Nonsense—mere love of excitement—that's all! But come now, Mr. Joe Strange, or whatever your name is aboard, let us now have your story. What have you been at these four long years? All of us except Lucy, are dying with impatience to know how you came to be on the deck of a ship of war, that was fighting against our country."

"Some people can throw apples to monkeys, though they would not themselves do the mischief which the monkeys do. But to my story: Four years ago, at the age of twenty, you know, I owned and commanded the pretty little schooner 'Good-Speed.' Owing to our ports being closed by the embargo, called 'Jefferson's gag,' I went to the West Indies, and became a carrier from one island to another. I had been gone a year and had done very well, when I remitted my earnings to my father—"

"They are laid up safe for you," said the old man.

"I was making a voyage from Trinidad to Porto Rico. I had but a mate, an American, one English sailor, and a Spaniard, for my crew. The mate and Spaniard consulted one watch, and the Englishman and myself the other. On the third night as I stood at the helm, I heard a noise in the cabin, and told Bally to step down and see if some of the barrels were rolling. Before he could execute my order, I saw the Spaniard come up from the cabin with a hurried step. By the moonlight, I saw a large Spanish knife in his hand. As he made towards me, I met him, parried his thrust, and knocked him down. We then wrestled the knife from his hand, and threw it overboard. Leaping upon his feet, he bounded down into the hold. We put on the hatch, and felt that he was safe. Immediately I procured a light and went into the cabin, and there was poor Bally, my mate, sitting up in his berth, with his skull broken, and a part of his brains protruding. As I was trying to bind it up, he said, 'Don't bind up my eyes—I can't see him when he comes again.' They were the last words he ever spoke; though he lived three days. There were now only two of us to sail the schooner, and I was every day expecting a storm. On the second night after this, I thought the 'Good-Speed' sailed badly. On trying the pump, I found there was water in the hold. I opened the hatches and looked down to see if she leaked, and found four feet of water in my vessel. The mate also was missing, and I now knew that the Spaniard had scuttled the vessel, intending to sink her. I got out, and taking a light and a loaded gun, once more went down and called for my Spanish friend, saying I would shoot him dead if he made the least resistance. He had crept away forward, and was high and dry, but gave himself up on my presenting the gun. We took him on deck and bound him, at ter receiving his confession that he intended to kill all and take the schooner as his own, and falling in that, he intended to sink with us, and that he had so scuttled the vessel that she could not live many hours longer. The schooner soon became unmanageable, but in four days after our troubles, she was driven upon an island. The mate had died the day before, but his corpse lay in the cabin. The people, magistrates, &c., of the coast came down and boarded us. They spoke the Spanish and I only the English language. The Spanish racial told his story, and I tried to tell mine. The result was, that after being allowed to bury my poor mate, without coffin or shroud, we were all taken to prison. On entering the prison our account was taken down word for word by the magistrate. At the end of seven and a half months, our story was again written down and compared with the first and with each other's. Then we had our trial. Without funds or friends, I got the interpreter's good graces, so that he aided us greatly. We were acquitted finally, and the Spaniard left in prison. Feeble and worn down with excitement and imprisonment, I knew not what to do. At length a vessel touched there; I agreed to work my passage home before the mast. While on the voyage, we were overhauled by a British man-of-war, and my name not being on her protection papers, I was claimed as a British seaman and taken on board the ship.

"Did they flog you as a deserter?" asked Harvey with his fists clenched.

"No, they only claimed me as a British sailor, and did not pretend that I had ever belonged to a man-of-war. I claimed to be an American, but this did not avail. Two-thirds of the men would swear they were Americans, if they could get released by it. There I was when the war broke out, and there I remained committing myself to God, and feeling sure that I should escape before long. But when we came into the Sound, and I saw the blue hills of Connecticut, my heart leaped, and I came near betraying myself. God be praised, that owing to Harvey's cool courage, and persevering efforts, I am here to see you all alive, and to praise God for his goodness."

"And you'll never go to sea again?" said Lucy, in tears.

"Not if you do all you can to keep me at home."

Lucy blushed but uttered no rebuke!

SERVANT GIRLS.—Some of the married ladies of this city experience great difficulty in procuring servant maids to suit them—they find plenty that are industrious, tidy, and attentive enough—but few that are ugly enough. The demand for ugly looking servant girls is enormous. Bachelors in such situations is always turned out to starve. The intelligence offices are always full of good-looking girls, for they are always out of situations, while those that are frightfully pock-marked pay a high premium and secure extra wages from the "Madames."

Husbands in such cases are less fastidiously disposed—they do not by any means insist on ugliness as an indispensable qualification in a female domestic. This is all very queer, isn't it? We wonder what it does mean? There is a family of our acquaintance which has turned away ten girls in about as many weeks. They were all engaged by the gentleman, all confoundly good looking, and all discharged by the lady. The result of the affair is that the family go without help, for the man of the house has constantly an advertisement in the papers for a "young, smart, tidy girl, to do the work of a small family."

He has plenty of applications at his office, down town, and when he finds one that harmonizes with his ideas, he sends up for the approval of Madame. The fellow is obstinate and knows that this kind of "heading" secures a class of custom that cannot receive the sanction at home, because they all have the objectionable clause—beauty. Men are apt to take a lively interest and sympathize with poor girls who are obliged to work for a living, and are sometimes a little liberal in their attentions, but we see no reason why married women should be so very particularly prejudiced against pretty chambermaids, &c. If a girl expects to get a place, the sooner she exposes herself to the small-pox the better.—New York Sunday Atlas.

The Washington Union publishes, with great parade of virtuous indignation, a letter from John Forney, dubbed colonel by way of derision, as everybody in Georgia who has not a more respectable title, is called Major—in which he attempts to break the force of a blasting charge made against him by a Harrisburg paper, that he permitted his sister to labor in a factory for three dollars a week, while he himself was squandering thousands of dollars a year in debauchery and the indulgence of profligate habits. We suggested a doubt of the truth of this allegation, when giving it publicity, although one might be excused for suspecting a fellow of any delinquency, who was capable of advising a friend to commit subornation of perjury. But it appears by Forney's letter, that it was substantially true. He acknowledges that his sister is working in a factory, but avers his readiness to support her, if she would accept of a pecuniary aid at his hands. She is probably a conscientious woman, and hesitates about receiving money procured by the means to which such persons as her brother resort at Washington. She is the more respectable person of the two, and Forney evidently so regards her; for he speaks of her position as an operative as one entailing her to high esteem in Lancaster county.—Buffalo Commercial.

EQUITY APPLIED TO DUELLING.—These are the conditions, with the reasons therefor, upon which a challenged party of large form, proposed to take the field against a challenger of smaller size:

1. That the weapons to be employed should be pistols.

2. That the distance shall be regulated by the laws of perspective. That is to say, we shall take our station at ten paces from each other; I will then fire at your slender body, which I may possibly miss, as it is not an inch in diameter larger than a tree which I have often failed to hit at that distance, when my nerves were perfectly quiet. On the event of missing you, I will then retire, say about four hundred yards, which, by the laws of perspective, will reduce my size to an equality with yours. Then you can take your chance at me. Or, if you insist on it, you may have the first fire at the distance of four hundred yards, and then, if not hit, I will approach within ten paces, and try my luck on your person. I think you cannot fail to see the perfect equity of this arrangement. It seems to be both reasonable and philosophical, while it would be a monstrous demand on your part, to require me, with my levithian person, to stand and be shot at, at ten paces, for which there would be no equivalent in shooting at you no way remarkable for size.

The conditions were rejected and the duel unfought.

COMMON COUNCIL.—The most important items of business in the council Saturday evening were authorizing the bridge committee to adopt any plan for a bridge which they shall deem best, and empowering them to close a contract for building it. A tax collectible this fall was voted to meet the cost of construction. Ald. Jackson made a statement as to the bonds of the city issued to the Valley railroad company, by which it appeared that there are only forty-six outstanding for which the city is considered liable. The balance, forty-one, were fraudulently obtained by some person or persons in New York, and the holders must look to such person or persons for redress. Bills to the amount of $240 were audited for taking care of a case of small pox recently brought into the city.

The Wisconsin is authorized to say that ex-governor Doty has not been and will not be a candidate for congress from the northern district, as has been reported in certain quarters.

Business in our streets is beginning to resume its accustomed life an activity. The harvest has been a long and busy one, giving our friends from the country hardly time to come and do their necessary trading. The consequence was, quiet times in town. This quiet is now disturbed by the "noise and confusion" of business, and what with the teams, and the improvements going on in the streets, they are kept nearly blocked up. The grain trade has opened brisk, and prices are exceedingly advantageous to farmers.

Some important errors occurred in our yesterday's paper, both in the news and in the advertising departments. The advertisements "stand corrected." In the article in reference to the amount of pine lumber sawed at Mr. Norris' mill, it should have been 10,000 feet per day, instead of being left for the reader to infer that it was so much per week.

The feeling which ought to animate the whigs and anti-Nebraska men of the north at the present juncture, is very happily pointed out by the Boston Atlas, in the course of some remarks calling the attention of the whigs of Massachusetts to the state convention, then to be held the next day. It says:

"The signs of the times are propitious. The elections which have just occurred are encouraging. The result in North Carolina is just what we expected, and so is not calculated to create any alarm. On the contrary, we hail the result as a happy omen. It teaches us the north must rely upon itself for the maintenance of its principles. On the question of slavery the south will always be found united. This is a significant fact, by which we should profit. Let us at the north present a united front and we have nothing to fear. We have a numerical majority, and if we will show as much zeal for freedom as they do for slavery, the south will soon learn to respect our rights. Our safety is in our own efforts. If we come up to the work like men, and show them that while we will not encroach upon their rights, we will submit to no encroachments upon ours, the whole matter will be settled at once. We trust that a voice will go out from the convention, which will show that we are resolved to stand by the constitution, and repel any and all attempts to make us a great slaveholding republic. And in the exercise of this feeling we trust that they will show a determination to elect none to office who are not true to the claims of the north—the claims of freedom. We have a glorious opportunity of striking a blow for freedom, and we flatter ourselves that it will not be unimproved."

MISREPRESENTATION.—The Dodge County Republican, in publishing "by request," a call for the republican congressional convention to be held at Waupun, takes the occasion for the first time, to define its position, and feels called upon to misrepresent that party and its doings at Madison. It is very late in the day to publish anything of that kind, and shows well how hard-pushed the Nebraskites are. The first charge made by the Republican is contained in the following paragraph:

Now we do not believe there is a sensible man in the state who is not opposed to the extension of slavery, yet we believe the convention was very thinly attended, and it was for the reason that it was known to have originated with men whose rule or ruin, and who got up the movement for the sole purpose of their own aggrandizement, knowing full well their pretended object was only to deceive those who only look at things superficially, and who are ready to fall in with all new fangled notions, especially when there is any chance of making anything thereby.

It is admitted by every fair man, that the convention was both large and respectable, and if there ever was a purely people's movement, this was one. There may have been such men in attendance as the Republican speaks of, but they were far from giving tone to the convention; these men may have had a hand in originating their further action, in the premises.

Misrepresentation number two is as follows: In order that our readers who are not already posted in this matter may understand the complexion of that convention, we will state that it was composed entirely of whigs, free-soilers and abolitionists, not a democrat gracing it with his presence, unless it was to witness their maneuvers, and report their proceedings.

There were not only a large number of democrats in the convention, but many of them took an active part in the proceedings, fully and freely sympathizing with the objects which they had met to promote and approving the manner proposed to promote them. We know not how the Republican's statements pass in Dodge county, but his own party friends here would confront him in such statements as he makes above, and put their own personal knowledge against his random statements.

The drought is prevailing to a very wide extent, and corn grain seems to be cut short throughout the eastern and middle states, and extending as far west as Michigan. We are informed both by the papers and from private intelligence that the potato crop in many instances will scarcely realize the seed, and the corn is literally dried up. How highly favored is our own state! The farmer has just finished the harvest of the most abundant crop of the finer grain ever produced in the state, and the promise for the corn and potato crop was never more flattering. The comparative ease with which corn is produced will make it a very profitable crop, if the prices are such as might be predicted from the failure in other states. We hear of many fields that have never felt the touch of the hoe since the planting time, that notwithstanding this bad farming will yield heavily.

The following from the Detroit Enquirer of last Thursday shows a darker picture for Michigan: Great drought is now prevailing throughout the state, threatening in many places to cut very short both corn and potatoes. The breadth of land in corn, the present season, is unusually large, and up to two weeks ago, a crop never looked more luxuriantly, or gave better promise, but the leaves now begin to curl and turn yellow, and the tops are dying out. In some cases, through large sections of country, farmers are cutting up this crop for fodder, having lost all hope of realizing anything like a yield from it; this is the case in the southern, western, and south-western part of Oakland county, and in the eastern part of Livingston.

The prevalent opinion among the more experienced farmers in this and adjoining counties, is that potatoes, which have not yet ripened, comprising all late planted potatoes, will be a failure. The vines are already dying fast. Food and pasturage are giving out, and stubble fields are drying up.

The weather since Sunday has been uncomfortable hot.

Something New!!

MR. CHARLES AUSTIN, the celebrated Reel maker has just completed his new Organ Reel, upon which he has labored for the last six years and expended more than six thousand dollars. This reel is different from all others in its composition, being much larger and having more power. It is intended for Church and Parlor Organs as manufactured by Messrs. Austin & Co. These Organs have an upright (Organ) action and are of the shape of all Church Organs. The price will range from $175 to $300, depending upon the finish of the case. To churches in want of an instrument of this kind we would say that they have more power than any common Organ costing $500.

J. F. Pease & Co., Janesville, Wis., are interested in the manufacture and sale of these instruments, and are the only persons through whom they can be had. They will have one or more for exhibition as early as Sept. 10, and after that a good assortment as soon as they can be manufactured.

THE PATENT SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING

Iron combines economy, convenience, saving of labor, neatness and dispatch. One cent's worth of dry charcoal supplies fuel for a whole day's constant ironing. In the absence of charcoal, hard wood coals will answer the same purpose. Its employment is as well adapted to one room as another, or the open air. Those who use them are relieved from the excessive fatigue of placing the irons at the fire, and the exhausting heat of the room. Its use is not accompanied by the possibility of smutting the clothes, and leaves a finish and gloss unsurpassed. One half more can be done with it in the same time, and with less labor. In short, this invention keeps pace with the age of railroads, a camshaft and telegraphs. Its great leading idea being economy, convenience and saving of labor; and this invention has it in perfection. The batteries and tailors irons are constructed upon the same principle and possess equal superiority. Our friend Col. Saxe has the exclusive right to sell by wholesale in this state, Indiana and Michigan. None but his agents will be authorized to sell them. The patentees are Messrs. Cummings and Bliss, and their extensive manufacturing is at Newark, New Jersey. This practical invention was patented in 1852, and in England, France, Belgium and Germany, in 1853, and it is now being adopted, extensively, and we believe will soon find a place in all economical and appreciating families. After seeing fifty or sixty notices of this invention in the New England papers, (where it is now generally used,) also New York and Ohio papers, we select the following from the New York Observer, as being quite correct and plainly descriptive of this new article:

A SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON.—A new invention of this description has been submitted to our inspection and has been used by those in our service. It is somewhat larger than the ordinary flat-iron, and has a long and higher handle. The body of the iron is hollow, and so constructed as to hold a small quantity of ignited charcoal. A small damper at one extremity regulates the draft, and a little pipe at the other conveys away the imperceptible fume that is generated. It is so arranged, that its supply of coal, small as it is, occupies one and a half or two hours in consumption, and keeps the iron for that length of time at a temperature, admitting of uninterrupted use. The bottom of the iron is beautifully smooth and highly polished. The advantages consist, 1st, in economy, one cent's worth of dry charcoal furnishing fuel for a whole day's ironing. 2d, Convenience, it being independent of a stove or furnace, and therefore capable of being used in any part of the house. 3d, Saving of labor in avoiding the constantly recurring necessity of carrying the iron to and from the fire. 4th, Avoiding the inconveniences of a hot room. 5th, Facilitating neatness, the hot iron being soiled by contact with the fire, but always retaining its perfect gloss. 6th, Dispatch, it involving a saving of all the time which is otherwise lost in exchanging the irons and keeping them in proper order. A bare inspection of the implement will satisfy any one that it is a decided improvement, and our only surprise is that it has not been thought of before. We hear the most favorable accounts of it from those who have employed it.

The above article may be found for sale at the hardware store of R. J. Richardson.

The mills have not yet got fairly to work on the new crop, but a beginning has been made. They are buying wheat and paying high prices. We brought up a sample of white winter wheat to our office, for which $1.40 had been paid. If this does not hurry up the farmers who live near the city, and on the great thoroughfares to send or bring their wheat to market, we do not know what will. Some four or five hundred barrels of new flour have been ground this week, and we understand all the mills will go into operation on Monday, when business will be lively on the canal.—Wisconsin, Saturday.

BULL VS. BEAR.—The Grass Valley Telegraph has the following:
"The bull and bear fight at Iowa Hill, on the 4th of July, was equal to the most sanguine expectation. Experienced vaqueros placed the animals in the ring without difficulty. The bull was wild, and the bear grizzly of large size, was caught a few weeks since. The instant the animals beheld each other they made a spring, the bear raising himself to strike, and the bull lowering his head for a plunge. The contest was tremendous, and in about twenty minutes the bull, with one ear bitten off, his nose torn and neck severely mangled, laid his ferocious adversary completely dead in the centre of the arena. The owner of the bull now offers to let him fight any bear not exceeding him in weight, that can be produced, for a wager of any sum between $1,000 and $5,000.

N. P. Willis has retired from the Home Journal, and in his valedictory announces that he has no longer any hope of recovering his health.—His disease is consumption.

DERANGED MAILS.—We saw at the post office this morning, 14 canvass bags filled with bound books, and addressed to Augustus Cesar Dodge of Burlington, Iowa.
No wonder mails are deranged when they are burdened with whole libraries. Augustus Cesar, however, having met his Brutus, we shall not hear as often from him hereafter.—Chicago Journal, 16th.

THE CALIFORNIA INDIAN RESERVATION has become a scene of singular prosperity. The Indians appear to work with the utmost cheerfulness and alacrity in their various occupations, of driving teams, feeding threshing machines, attending the crops, etc. Their wheat crop is enormous, averaging thirty-five bushels to the acre, and estimated to be worth, according to prices at Los Angeles, from $300,000 to $400,000. Indians arrive daily in small parties from various parts of the state, and though each tribe speaks a different dialect, they thrive harmoniously together, such a thing as a quarrel or fight never happening among them. Capt. P. Conner, in a recent letter from the reservation, says that a happier set of beings than these Indians, it has never been his lot to see.

THE "PATENT SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON" combines economy, convenience, saving of labor, neatness and dispatch. One cent's worth of dry charcoal supplies fuel for a whole day's constant ironing. In the absence of charcoal, hard wood coals will answer the same purpose. Its employment is as well adapted to one room as another, or the open air. Those who use them are relieved from the excessive fatigue of placing the irons at the fire, and the exhausting heat of the room. Its use is not accompanied by the possibility of smutting the clothes, and leaves a finish and gloss unsurpassed. One half more can be done with it in the same time, and with less labor. In short, this invention keeps pace with the age of railroads, steamships and telegraphs. Its great leading idea being economy, convenience and saving of labor, and this invention has it in perfection. The irons and trowsers are constructed upon the same principle and possess equal superiority. Our friend Col. Sato has the exclusive right to sell by wholesale in this state, Indiana and Michigan. None but his agents will be authorized to sell them. The patentees are Messrs. Cummings and Bliss, and their extensive manufacturing is at Newark, New Jersey. This practical invention was patented in 1852, and in England, France, Belgium and Germany, in 1853, and it is now being adopted, extensively, and we believe will soon find a place in all economical and appreciating families. After seeing fifty or sixty notices of this invention in the New England papers, (where it is now generally used,) also New York and Ohio papers, we select the following from the New York Observer, as being quite correct and plainly descriptive of this new article:

A SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON.—A new invention of this description has been submitted to our inspection and has been used by those in our service. It is somewhat larger than the ordinary flat-iron, and has a long and higher handle. The body of the iron is hollow, and so constructed as to hold a small quantity of ignited charcoal. A small damper at one extremity regulates the draft, and a little pipe at the other conveys away the imperceptible fume that is generated. It is so arranged, that its supply of coal, small as it is, occupies one and a half or two hours in consumption, and keeps the iron for that length of time at a temperature, admitting of uninterrupted use. The bottom of the iron is beautifully smooth and highly polished. The advantages consist, 1st, in economy, one cent's worth of dry charcoal furnishing fuel for a whole day's ironing. 2d, Convenience, it being independent of a stove or furnace, and therefore capable of being used in any part of the house. 3d, Saving of labor in avoiding the constantly recurring necessity of carrying the iron to and from the fire. 4th, Avoiding the inconveniences of a hot room. 5th, Facilitating neatness, the hot iron being soiled by contact with the clothes, but always retaining its perfect gloss. 6th, Dispatch, it involving a saving of all the time which is otherwise lost in exchanging the irons and keeping them in proper order. A bare inspection of the implement will satisfy any one that it is a decided improvement, and our only surprise is that it has not been thought of before. We hear the most favorable accounts of it from those who have employed it.

The mills have not yet got fairly to work on the new crop, but a beginning has been made. They are buying wheat, and paying high prices. We brought up a sample of white wheat to our agent, for which $1.40 had been paid. If this does not hurry up the farmers who live near the city, and on the great thorough-fires to send or bring their wheat to market, we do not know what will. Some four or five hundred barrels of new flour have been ground this week, and we understand all the mills will go into operation on Monday, when business will be lively on the canal.—Wisconsin, Saturday.

BULL VS. BEAR.—The Grass Valley Telegraph has the following:

"The bull and bear fight at Iowa Hill, on the 4th of July, was equal to the most sanguine expectation. Experienced rangers placed the animals in the ring without difficulty. The bull was wild, and the bear grizzly of large size, was caught a few weeks since. The instant the animals beheld each other they made a spring, the bull raising himself to strike, and the bull lowering his head for a plunge. The contest was tremendous, and in about twenty minutes the bull, with one ear bitten off, his nose torn and neck severely mangled, laid his ferocious adversary completely dead in the centre of the arena. The owner of the bull now offers to let him fight any bear not exceeding him in weight, that can be produced, for a wager of any sum between $1,000 and $5,000.

N. P. Willis has retired from the Home Journal, and in his valedictory announces that he has no longer any hope of recovering his health.—His disease is consumption.

DERANGED MAILS.—We saw at the post office this morning, 14 canvass bags filled with bound books, and addressed to Augustus Cesar Dodge of Burlington, Iowa.

No wonder mails are deranged when they are burdened with whole libraries. Augustus Cesar, however, having met his Brutus, we shall not hear of him often from him hereafter.—Chicago Journal, 16th.

THE CALIFORNIA INDIAN RESERVATION has become a scene of singular prosperity. The Indians appear to work with the utmost cheerfulness and alacrity in their various occupations, of driving teams, feeding threshing machines, attending the crops, etc. Their wheat crop is enormous, averaging thirty-five bushels to the acre, and estimated to be worth, according to prices at Los Angeles, from $300,000 to $400,000. Indians arrive daily in small parties from various parts of the state, and though each tribe speaks a different dialect, they thrive harmoniously together; such a thing as a quarrel or fight never happening among them. Capt. P. E. Conner, in a recent letter from the reservation, says that a happier set of beings than these Indians, it has never been his lot to see.

BY REV. JOHN TODD, D. D.

[Concluded.]

Far up the heavens rolled the flames of the house and barn; and the four warring eyes in the region knew how it must be, but there was none to help. Slowly up into the back country were walking, as day began to dawn, Harvey Loomis and Joseph Collins. They had stopped to embrace, to weep, and to laugh more than once. "Was nobly done, Harvey; but when you first looked the bell, what did you expect?"

"I was in hopes you would recollect the old bell at once, and smell it out, and at a single bound come to me."

"Well, I did not—I was sent. But when I got there, why did you fire your gun in my face and knock my lantern out of my hand?"

"I put out your light to make it dark, you know; and I fired the gun, so that if you had been taken, they might suppose you were taken as a prisoner, and not hang you as a deserter."

"You cunning fellow! what if they had taken you?"

"Hanging on the yard-arm of course; I had made up my mind for that."

"Noble fellow! may God reward you, I never can. Well now you go home, Harvey, and tell Lucy—and watch her closely—if she's got her heart on any other point of the compass be faithful and let me know it. I will go and show myself to father and mother, and if I don't hear from you, I shall be at your house by ten o'clock. Mind now about Lucy!"

"Get out, you jealous fellow; it's more than half because I love Lucy that I have had my neck smell of hemp for the last six months!"

That morning after breakfast as usual, old Mr. Collins had read in the presence of his wife and little Molly, an orphan child of color, the word of God, and then they knelt in prayer. Just as he was about to kneel, the old parrot cried out, "Joseph! oh Joseph! and Lucy Loomis too!"

The words meant nothing in the mouth of the bird, but they led the train of his thoughts in that channel. After praying for things which filled the heart, he added, "And now, oh Lord! remember, we beseech thee, our poor wanderer, if he be still in the land of the living; whether on the land or on the deep, in the hospital or in the prison, oh remember him. We would pray, in all submission, that we may see his face once more and lean upon him as the staff of our age; but if this may never be, our prayer is that we may meet him in heaven, to part with him no more!"

While the good old man was thus praying, with many tears, the door softly opened, and the young man stood within it. When the family arose from their knees, they stood their son bashed in tears! The old man lifted up his hands in utter amazement, but the mother sobbed, "My son! my son!" and fell upon his neck.

A few hours after this there was a group gathered at Mr. John Loomis', who came with a kind of trembling as men might be supposed to feel who were conscious of being in a dream and were afraid of being awakened. There were old Mr. Collins and wife, who contrived to keep near their son as if afraid he might escape, or change into something besides himself. Then there were old Mr. Loomis and wife, who felt a quiet joy in sympathizing with those whose emotions were deep. Harvey said he believed he felt as foolish as did Toussaint, when in his puppyhood he chased something and it turned out to be a real con!

As for Miss Lucy, she tied hard to appear sedate and quiet, but the color would come and go, and she felt nervous and restless, and had no command of herself till she had gone out and had a good joyful time of weeping. Harvey was the first here, and he had to relate how he had heard a rumor that Joseph was in some ship on our coast, and that he had visited every ship that had come into the sound under pretense of selling something.

"It has all turned out right," said he, "except the burning of deacon Mayo's house and barn. I feel grieved to think I was probably the cause of that—by showing the cattle and enticing them ashore."

"You take to yourself too much credit," said Joseph, "for the orders were given to land and search for cattle and fire the buildings before you showed the cattle; that I can testify."

"Very good—for though some of us wanted you back, I don't know as any one would have subscribed a whole barn," said Harvey looking archly at Lucy.

ter receiving his confession that he intended to kill and take the schooner as his own, and falling in that, he intended to sink with us, and that he had so scuttled the vessel that she could not live many hours longer. The schooner soon became unmanageable, but in four days after our troubles, she was driven upon an island. The mate had died the day before, but his corpse lay in the cabin. The people, magistrates, &c., of the coast came down and boarded us. They spoke the Spanish and I only the English language. The Spanish asked me the story, and I tried to tell him. The result was that, after being allowed to bury my poor mate, without coffin or shroud, we were all taken to prison.

On entering the prison our account was taken down word for word by the magistrate. At the end of seven and a half months, our story was again written down and compared with the first and with each other's. Then we had our trial. Without funds or friends, I got the interpreter's good graces, so that he aided us greatly. We were acquitted finally, and the Spaniard left in prison. Feeble and worn down with excitement and imprisonment, I knew not what to do. At length a vessel touched there; I agreed to work my passage home before the mast. While on the voyage, we were overhauled by a British man-of-war, and my name not being on her protection papers, I was claimed as a British seaman and taken on board the ship.

"Did they flog you as a deserter?" asked Harvey with his fists clenched.

"No, they only claimed me as a British sailor, and did not pretend that I had ever belonged to a man-of-war. I claimed to be an American, but this did not avail. Two-thirds of the men would swear they were Americans, if they could get released by it. There I was when the war broke out, and there I remained committing myself to God, and feeling sure that I should escape before long. But when we came into the Sound, and I saw the blue hills of Connecticut, my heart leaped, and I came near betraying myself. God be praised, that owing to Harvey's cool courage, and persevering efforts, I am here to see you all alive, and to praise God for his goodness."

"And you'll never go to sea again?" said Lucy, in tears.

"Not if you do all you can to keep me at home."

Lucy blushed but uttered no rebuke!

SERVANT GIRLS.—Some of the married ladies of this city experience great difficulty in procuring servant maids to suit them—they find plenty that are industrious, tidy, and attentive enough—but few that are ugly enough. The demand for ugly-looking servant girls is enormous: the supply does not begin to equal the demand. Beauty in such situations is always turned out to starve. The intelligence offices are always full of good-looking girls, for they are always out of situations, while those that are frightfully pooh-marked pay a high premium and secure extra wages from the "Madames."

Husbands.—In such cases as less fastidiously disposed—they do not by any means insist on ugliness as an indispensable qualification in a female domestic. This is a very queer, isn't it? We wonder what it does mean? There is a family of our acquaintance that has turned away ten girls in about as many weeks. They were all engaged by the gentleman, all confoundingly good looking, and all discharged by the lady. The result of the affair is that the family go without help, for the man of the house has constantly an advertisement in the papers for a "young, smart, tidy girl, to do the work of a small family."

He has plenty of applications at his office, down town, and when he finds one that harmonizes with his ideas, he sends up for the approval of Madame. The fellow is obstinate and knows that this kind of "heading" secures a class of custom that cannot receive the sanction at home, because they all have the objectionable clause—beauty. Men are apt to take a lively interest and sympathize with poor girls who are obliged to work for a living, and are sometimes a little liberal in their attentions, but we see no reason why married women should be so very particularly prejudiced against pretty chambermaids, &c. If a girl expects to get a place, the sooner she exposes herself to the small-pox the better.—New York Sunday Atlas.

The Washington Union publishes, with great parade of virtuous indignation, a letter from John Forney—dubbed colonel by way of derision, as everybody in Georgia who has not a more respectable title, is called Major—in which he attempts to break the force of a blasting charge made against him by a Harrisburg paper, that he permitted his sister to labor in a factory for three dollars a week, while he himself was squandering thousands of dollars a year in debauchery and the indulgence of profligate habits. We suggested a doubt of the truth of this allegation, when giving it publicity, although one might be excused for suspecting a fellow of any dirtiness, who was capable of advising a friend to commit abomination of perjury. But it appears by Forney's letter, that it was substantially true. He acknowledges that his sister is working in a factory, but avers his readiness to support her, if she would accept of a reasonable aid at his hands. She is probably a conscientious woman, and hesitates about receiving money procured by the means to which such persons as her brother resort at Washington. She is the more respectable person of the two, and Forney evidently so regards her; for he speaks of her position as an operative as one entitling her to high esteem in Lancaster county.—Buffalo Commercial.

EQUITY APPLIED TO DUELLING.—These are the conditions, with the reasons therefor, upon which a challenged party of large form, proposed to take the field against a challenger of smaller size:

1. That the weapons to be employed should be pistols.

2. That the distance shall be regulated by the laws of perspective. That is to say, we shall take our station at ten paces from each other; I will then fire at your slender body, which I may possibly miss, as it is not an inch in diameter larger than a tree which I have often failed to hit at that distance, when my nerves were perfectly quiet. On the event of missing you, I will then retire, say about four hundred yards, which, by the laws of perspective, will reduce my size to an equality with yours. Then you can take your chance at me. Or, if you insist on it, you may have the first fire at the distance of four hundred yards, and then, if not hit, I will approach within ten paces, and try my luck on your person. I think you cannot fail to see the perfect equity of this arrangement. It seems to be both reasonable and philosophical, while it would be a monstrous demand on your part, to require me, with my levitation person, to stand and be shot at, at ten paces, for which there would be no equivalent in shooting at you no way remarkable for size.

The conditions were rejected and the duel unfought.

COMMON COUNCIL.—The most important items of business in the council Saturday evening were authorizing the bridge committee to adopt any plan for a bridge which they shall deem best, and empowering them to close a contract for building it. A tax collectible this fall was voted to meet the cost of "construction." Ald. Jackson made a statement as to the bonds of the city issued to the Valley railroad company, by which it appeared that there are only forty-six outstanding for which the city is considered liable. The balance, forty-one, were fraudulently obtained by some person or persons in New York, and the holders must look to such person or persons for redress. Bills to the amount of $200 were audited for taking care of a case of small pox recently brought into the city.

The Wisconsin is authorized to say that ex-governor Doty has not been and will not be a candidate for congress from the northern district, as has been reported in certain quarters.

Business in our streets is beginning to resume its accustomed life and activity. The harvest has been a long and busy one, giving our friends from the country hardly time to come and do their necessary trading. The consequence was, quiet times in town. This quiet is now disturbed by the "noise and confusion" of business, and what with the teams, and the improvements going on in the streets, they are kept nearly blocked up. The grain trade has opened brisk, and prices are exceedingly advantageous to farmers.

Some important errors occurred in our yesterday's paper, both in the news and in the advertising departments. The advertisements "stand corrected." In the article in reference to the amount of pine lumber saved at Mr. Norris' mill, it should have been 10,000 feet per day, instead of being left for the reader to infer that it was so much per week.

The feeling which ought to animate the whigs and anti-Nebraska men of the north at the present juncture, is very happily pointed out by the Boston Atlas, in the course of some remarks calling the attention of the whigs of Massachusetts to the state convention; then to be held the next day. It says:

"The signs of the times are propitious. The elections which have just occurred are encouraging. The result in North Carolina is just what we expected, and is not calculated to create any alarm. On the contrary, we hail the result as a happy omen. It teaches us the north just very truly itself for the maintenance of just principles. On the question of slavery the south will always be found united. This is a significant fact, by which we should profit. Let us at the north present a united front and we have nothing to fear. We have a numerical majority, and if we will show as much zeal for freedom as they do for slavery, the south will soon learn to respect our rights. Our safety is in our own efforts. If we come up to the work like men, and show them that while we will not encroach upon their rights, we will submit to no encroachments upon ours, the whole matter will be settled at once. We trust that a voice will go out from the convention, which will show that we are resolved to stand by the constitution, and repel any and all attempts to make us a great slaveholding republic. And in the exercise of this feeling we trust that they will show a determination to elect none to office who are not true to the claims of the north—the claims of freedom. We have a glorious opportunity of striking a blow for freedom, and we flatter ourselves that it will not be unimproved."

MISREPRESENTATION.—The Dodge County Republican, in publishing "by request," a call for the republican congressional convention to be held at Waupun, takes the occasion for the first time, to define its position, and feels called upon to misrepresent that party and its doings at Madison. It is very late in the day to publish anything of that kind, and shows how hard-pushed the Nebraskites are. The first charge made by the Republican is contained in the following paragraph:

Now we do not believe there is a sensible man in the state who is not opposed to the extension of slavery, yet we believe the convention was very thinly attended, and it was for the reason that it was known to have originated with men who seek to rule or ruin, and who got up the movement for the sole purpose of their own aggrandizement, knowing full well their pretended object was only to deceive those who only look at things superficially, and who are ready to fall in with all new fangled notions, especially when there is any chance of making anything thereby.

It is admitted by every fair man, that the convention was both large and respectable, and if there ever was a purely people's movement, this was one. There may have been such men in attendance as the Republican speaks of, but they were far from giving tone to the convention; these men may have had a hand in originating the meeting, but the people forestalled their further action in the premises.

Misrepresentation number two is as follows: In order that our readers who are not already posted in this matter may understand the complexity of that convention, we will state that it was composed entirely of whigs, free-soilers and abolitionists, not a democratic gracing it with his presence, unless it was to witness their maneuvers, and report their proceedings.

There were not only a large number of democrats in the convention, but many of them took an active part in the proceedings, fully and freely sympathizing with the objects which they had met to promote and approving the manner proposed to promote them. We know not how the Republican's statements pass in Dodge county, but his own party friends here would confront him in such statements as he makes above, and put their own personal knowledge against his random statements.

The drought is prevailing to a very wide extent, and coarser grains seem to be cut short throughout the eastern and middle states, and extending as far west as Michigan. We are informed both by the papers and from private intelligence that the potato crop in many instances will scarcely realize the seed, and the corn is literally dried up. How highly favored is our own state! The farmer has just finished the harvest of the most abundant crop of the finer grains ever produced in the state, and the promise for the corn and potato crop was never more flattering. The comparative ease with which corn is produced will make it a very profitable crop, if the prices are such as might be predicted from the failure in other states. We hear of many fields that have never felt the touch of the hoe since the planting time, that notwithstanding this bad farming will yield heavily. The following from the Detroit Enquirer of last Thursday shows a darker picture for Michigan:

Great drought is now prevailing throughout the state, threatening in many places to cut very short both corn and potatoes. The breadth of land in corn, the present season, is unusually large, and up to two weeks ago, a crop never looked more luxuriantly, or gave better promise, but the leaves now begin to curl and turn yellow, and the tops are dying out. In some cases, through large sections of country, farmers are cutting up this crop for fodder, having lost all hope of realizing anything like a yield from it; this is the case in the southern, western, and south-western part of Oakland county, and in the eastern part of Livingston.

The prevalent opinion among the more experienced farmers in this and adjoining counties, is that potatoes, which have not yet ripened, comprising all late planted potatoes, will be a failure. The vines are already dying fast. Feed and pasturage are giving out, and stubble fields are drying up.

The weather since Sunday has been uncomfortable hot.

Something New!!

MR. CHARLES AUSTIN, the celebrated Reel maker has just completed his new Organ Reel, upon which he is laboring for the last five years and expended more than six thousand dollars. This reel is different from all others in its composition, being much larger and having more power. It is intended for Church and Parlor Organs as manufactured by Messrs. J. F. Pease & Co. of New York.

An upright Organ action and of the shape of all Church Organs. The price will range from $175 to $300, depending upon the finish of the case. To churches in want of an instrument of that value we would say that they have more power than any common Organ costing $500.

J. F. Pease & Co., Janesville, Wis., are interested in the manufacture and sale of these instruments, and are the only persons through whom they can be had. They will have one or more for exhibition, as early as Sept. 10, and after that a good assortment as soon as they can be manufactured.

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

THE "PATENT SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON" combines economy, convenience, saving of labor, neatness and dispatch. One cent's worth of dry charcoal supplies fuel for a whole day's constant ironing. In the absence of charcoal, hard wood coals will answer the same purpose. Its employment is as well adapted to one room as another, or the open air. Those who use them are relieved from the excessive fatigue of placing the irons at the fire, and the exhausting heat of the room. Its use is not accompanied by the possibility of scalding the clothes, and leaves a finish and gloss unsurpassed. One half more can be done with it in the same time, and with less labor. In short, this invention keeps pace with the age of railroads, steamships and telegraphs. Its great leading idea being economy, convenience and saving of labor; and this invention has it in perfection. The hats and tailors irons are constructed upon the same principle and possess equal superiority. Our friend Col. Saxo has the exclusive right to sell by wholesale in this state, Indiana and Michigan. None but his agents will be authorized to sell them. The patentees are Messrs. Cummings and Bliss, and their extensive manufacturing is at Newark, New Jersey. This practical invention was patented in 1852, and in England, France, Belgium and Germany, in 1853, and it is now being adopted, extensively, and we believe will soon find a place in all economical and appreciating families. After seeing fifty or sixty notices of this invention in the New England papers, (where it is now generally used,) also New York and Ohio papers, we select the following from the New York Observer, as being quite correct and plainly descriptive of this new article:

SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON.—A new invention of this description has been submitted to our inspection and has been used by those in our service. It is somewhat larger than the ordinary flat-iron, and has a long and higher handle. The body of the iron is hollow, and so constructed as to hold a small quantity of ignited charcoal. A small damper at one extremity regulates the draft, and a little pipe at the other conveys away the imperceptible fumes that is generated. It is so arranged, that its supply of coal, small as it is, occupies one and a half or two hours in consumption, and keeps the iron for that length of time at a temperature, admitting of uninterrupted use. The bottom of the iron is beautifully smooth and highly polished. The advantages consist, 1st, in economy, one cent's worth of dry charcoal furnishing fuel for a whole day's ironing. 2d, Convenience, it being independent of a stove or furnace, and therefore capable of being used in any part of the house. 3d, Saving of labor in avoiding the constantly recurring necessity of carrying the iron to and from the fire. 4th, Avoiding the inconveniences of a hot room. 5th, Facilitating neatness, the hot iron being soiled by contact with the fire, but always retaining its perfect gloss. 6th, Dispatch, it involving a saving of all the time which is otherwise lost in exchanging the irons and keeping them in proper order. A bare inspection of the implement will satisfy any one that it is a decided improvement, and our only surprise is that it has not been thought of before. We hear the most favorable accounts of it from those who have employed it.

The above article may be found for sale at the hardware store of R. J. Richardson.

The mills have not yet got fairly to work on the new crop, but a beginning has been made. They are buying wheat, and paying high prices. We brought up a sample of white winter wheat to our office, for which $1.40 had been paid. If this does not hurry up the farmers who live near the city, and on the great thoroughfares to send or bring their wheat to market, we do not know what will. Some four or five hundred barrels of new flour have been ground this week, and we understand all the mills will go into operation on Monday, when business will be lively on the canal. —Wisconsin, Saturday.

BULL VS. BEAR.—The Grass Valley Telegraph has the following:

"The bull and bear fight at Iowa Hill, on the 4th of July, was equal to the most sanguine expectation. Experienced vaqueros placed the animals in the ring without difficulty. The bull was wild, and the bear grizzly at large size, was caught a few weeks since. The instant the animals beheld each other they made a spring, the bear raising himself to strike, and the bull lowering his head for a plunge. The contest was tremendous, and in about twenty minutes the bull, with one ear bitten off, his nose torn and neck severely mangled, laid his ferocious adversary completely dead in the centre of the arena. The owner of the bull now offers to let him fight any bear not exceeding him in weight, that can be produced, for a wager of any sum between $3,000 and $5,000.

The CALIFORNIA INDIAN RESERVATION has become a scene of singular prosperity. The Indians appear to work with the utmost cheerfulness and alacrity in their various occupations, of driving teams, feeding threshing machines, attending the crops, etc. Their wheat crop is enormous, averaging thirty-five bushels to the acre, and estimated to be worth, according to prices at Los Angeles, from $300,000 to $400,000. Indians arrive daily in small parties from various parts of the state, and through each tribe speak a different dialect, they thrive harmoniously together, such a thing as a quarrel or fight never happening among them. Capt. P. E. Conner, in a recent letter from the reservation, says that a happier set of beings than these Indians, it has never been his lot to see.

WHEELLOCK'S is triumphant, and ever shall be.

THIS is the middle of the nineteenth century, the first half of which has produced more change and onward movement than any fifty years of our Christian Era.

The great controlling power of this age is its commerce—indeed, this may be truly called the commercial age. It has been well said by an ancient writer that "Man wants but little here below."

WHEELLOCK Announces to every people and every tongue, to both sexes and all parties, to all factions of all gauges, that finding his old stock entirely

All patterns and ranging in price from SIX CENTS Per Yard to Twenty-Eight Cents, such dresses as will add to their exquisite beauty, though it may be a general thing, be so difficult to add to that beauty as it is to "give refined gold, paint the lily, or add perfume to the violet."

It must not be inferred that we offer only these and the many other articles of the best style—So that of this store, so far as articles which adorn La Belle case are concerned, it may be truly said

"CUSTOM cannot state the infinitesimal variety." While the Boston Store has made provision to protect the fact, it can also boast that it has all sorts of

GLOVES, by which hands can be protected and refined "The white wonder of fair Juliet's hand."

And in taking leave of those of whom it is no exaggeration to say they are

"The Nonpareils of the Fair," the proprietors of perfection, Mr. Wheellock assures his fair customers that his assistants and auxiliaries are those who unite great knowledge of the business, fine personal presence and ability of manner to the determination to discharge conscientiously their several and active duties; that while they may have the proper desire to effect sales, they will never in imitation of many of our contemporaries attempt to accomplish it by equivocation, misrepresentation, exaggeration, tergiversation, fabrication, or by direct lying.

And now to the wants of the

[Concluded.]

Far up the heavens rolled the flames of the house and barn; and the four warring eyes in the region knew how it must be, but there was none to help. Slowly up into the back country were walking, as day began to dawn, Harvey Loomis and Joseph Collins. They had stopped to embrace, to weep, and to laugh more than once. "Was nobly done, Harvey; but when you first looked the bell, what did you expect?"

"I was in hopes you would recollect the old bell at once, and smell it out, and at a single bound come to me."

"Well, I did not—I was sent. But when I got there, why did you fire your gun in my face and knock my lantern out of my hand?"

"I put out your light to make it dark, you know; and I fired the gun, so that if you had been taken, they might suppose you were taken as a prisoner, and not hang you as a deserter."

"You cunning fellow! what if they had taken you?"

"Hanging on the yard-arm of course; I had made up my mind for that."

"Noble fellow! may God reward you, I never can. Well now you go home, Harvey, and tell Lucy—and watch her closely—if she's got her heart on any other point of the compass be faithful and let me know it. I will go and show myself to father and mother, and if I don't hear from you, I shall be at your house by ten o'clock. Mind now about Lucy!"

"Get out, you jealous fellow; it's more than half because I love Lucy that I have had my neck smell of hemp for the last six months!"

That morning after breakfast as usual, old Mr. Collins had read in the presence of his wife and little Molly, an orphan child of color, the word of God, and then they knelt in prayer. Just as he was about to kneel, the old parrot cried out, "Joseph! oh Joseph! and Lucy Loomis too!"

The words meant nothing in the mouth of the bird, but they led the train of his thoughts in that channel. After praying for things which filled the heart, he added, "And now, oh Lord! remember, we beseech thee, our poor wanderer, if he be still in the land of the living; whether on the land or on the deep, in the hospital or in the prison, oh remember him. We would pray, in all submission, that we may see his face once more and lean upon him as the staff of our age; but if this may never be, our prayer is that we may meet him in heaven, to part with him no more!"

While the good old man was thus praying, with many tears, the door softly opened, and the young man stood within it. When the family arose from their knees, they stood their son bashed in tears! The old man lifted up his hands in utter amazement, but the mother sobbed, "My son! my son!" and fell upon his neck.

A few hours after this there was a group gathered at Mr. John Loomis', who came with a kind of trembling as men might be supposed to feel who were conscious of being in a dream and were afraid of being awakened. There were old Mr. Collins and wife, who contrived to keep near their son as if afraid he might escape, or change into something besides himself. Then there were old Mr. Loomis and wife, who felt a quiet joy in sympathizing with those whose emotions were deep. Harvey said he believed he felt as foolish as did Towser, when in his puppyhood he chased something and it turned out to be a real con!

As for Miss Lucy, she tied hard to appear sedate and quiet, but the color would come and go, and she felt nervous and restless, and had no command of herself till she had gone out and had a good joyful time of weeping. Harvey was the first here, and he had to relate how he had heard a rumor that Joseph was in some ship on our coast, and that he had visited every ship that had come into the sound under pretense of selling something.

"It has all turned out right," said he, "except the burning of deacon Mayo's house and barn. I feel grieved to think I was probably the cause of that—by showing the cattle and enticing them ashore."

"You take to yourself too much credit," said Joseph, "for the orders were given to land and search for cattle and fire the buildings before you showed the cattle; that I can testify."

"Very good—for though some of us wanted you back, I don't know as any one would have subscribed a whole barn," said Harvey looking archly at Lucy.

ter receiving his confession that he intended to kill and take the schooner as his own, and falling in that, he intended to sink with us, and that he had so scuttled the vessel that she could not live many hours longer. The schooner soon became unmanageable, but in four days after our troubles, she was driven upon an island. The mate had died the day before, but his corpse lay in the cabin. The people, magistrates, &c., of the coast came down and boarded us. They spoke the Spanish and I only the English language. The Spanish asked the story, and I tried to tell mine. The result was that, after being allowed to bury my poor mate, without coffin or shroud, we were all taken to prison.

On entering the prison our account was taken down word for word by the magistrate. At the end of seven and a half months, our story was again written down and compared with the first and with each other's. Then we had our trial. Without funds or friends, I got the interpreter's good graces, so that he aided us greatly. We were acquitted finally, and the Spaniard left in prison. Feeble and worn down with excitement and imprisonment, I knew not what to do. At length a vessel touched there; I agreed to work my passage home before the mast. While on the voyage, we were overhauled by a British man-of-war, and my name not being on her protection papers, I was claimed as a British seaman and taken on board the ship.

"Did they flog you as a deserter?" asked Harvey with his fists clenched.

"No, they only claimed me as a British sailor, and did not pretend that I had ever belonged to a man-of-war. I claimed to be an American, but this did not avail. Two-thirds of the men would swear they were Americans, if they could get released by it. There I was when the war broke out, and there I remained committing myself to God, and feeling sure that I should escape before long. But when we came into the Sound, and I saw the blue hills of Connecticut, my heart leaped, and I came near betraying myself. God be praised, that owing to Harvey's cool courage, and persevering efforts, I am here to see you all alive, and to praise God for his goodness."

"And you'll never go to sea again?" said Lucy in tears.

"Not if you do all you can to keep me at home."

Lucy blushed but uttered no rebuke!

SERVANT GIRLS.—Some of the married ladies of this city experience great difficulty in procuring servant maids to suit them—they find plenty that are industrious, tidy, and attentive enough—but few that are ugly enough. The demand for ugly-looking servant girls is enormous: the supply doesn't begin to equal the demand. Beauty in such situations is always turned out to starve. The intelligence offices are always full of good-looking girls, for they are always out of situations, while those that are frightfully pooh-marked pay a high premium and secure extra wages from the "Madames."

Husbands.—In such cases as less fastidiously disposed—they do not by any means insist on ugliness as an indispensable qualification in a female domestic. This is a very queer, isn't it? We wonder what it does mean? There is a family of our acquaintance that has turned away ten girls in about as many weeks. They were all engaged by the gentleman, all confoundingly good looking, and all discharged by the lady. The result of the affair is that the family go without help, for the man of the house has constantly an advertisement in the papers for a "young, smart, tidy girl, to do the work of a small family."

He has plenty of applications at his office, down town, and when he finds one that harmonizes with his ideas, he sends up for the approval of Madame. The fellow is obstinate and knows that this kind of "heading" secures a class of custom that cannot receive the sanction at home, because they all have the objectionable clause—beauty. Men are apt to take a lively interest and sympathize with poor girls who are obliged to work for a living, and are sometimes a little liberal in their attentions, but we see no reason why married women should be so very particularly prejudiced against pretty chambermaids, &c. If a girl expects to get a place, the sooner she exposes herself to the small-pox the better.—New York Sunday Atlas.

The Washington Union publishes, with great parade of virtuous indignation, a letter from John Forney—dubbed colonel by way of derision, as everybody in Georgia who has not a more respectable title, is called Major—in which he attempts to break the force of a blasting charge made against him by a Harrisburg paper, that he permitted his sister to labor in a factory for three dollars a week, while he himself was squandering thousands of dollars a year in debauchery and the indulgence of profligate habits. We suggested a doubt of the truth of this allegation, when giving it publicity, although one might be excused for suspecting a fellow of any dirtiness, who was capable of advising a friend to commit abomination of perjury. But it appears by Forney's letter, that it was substantially true. He acknowledges that his sister is working in a factory, but avers his readiness to support her, if she would accept of a mess of pottage at his hands. She is probably a conscientious woman, and hesitates about receiving money procured by the means to which such persons as her brother resort at Washington. She is the more respectable person of the two, and Forney evidently so regards her; for he speaks of her position as an operative as one entitling her to high esteem in Lancaster county.—Buffalo Commercial.

EQUITY APPLIED TO DUELLING.—These are the conditions, with the reasons therefor, upon which a challenged party of large form, proposed to take the field against a challenger of smaller size:

1. That the weapons to be employed should be pistols.

2. That the distance shall be regulated by the laws of perspective. That is to say, we shall take our station at ten paces from each other; I will then fire at your slender body, which I may possibly miss, as it is not an inch in diameter larger than a tree which I have often failed to hit at that distance, when my nerves were perfectly quiet. On the event of missing you, I will then retire, say about four hundred yards, which, by the laws of perspective, will reduce my size to an equality with yours. Then you can take your chance at me. Or, if you insist on it, you may have the first fire at the distance of four hundred yards, and then, if not hit, I will approach within ten paces, and try my luck on your person. I think you cannot fail to see the perfect equity of this arrangement. It seems to be both reasonable and philosophical, while it would be a monstrous demand on your part, to require me, with my levitation person, to stand and be shot at, at ten paces, for which there would be no equivalent in shooting at you no way remarkable for size.

The conditions were rejected and the duel unfought.

COMMON COUNCIL.—The most important items of business in the council Saturday evening were authorizing the bridge committee to adopt any plan for a bridge which they shall deem best, and empowering them to close a contract for building it. A tax collectible this fall was voted to meet the cost of "construction." Ald. Jackson made a statement as to the bonds of the city issued to the Valley railroad company, by which it appeared that there are only forty-six outstanding for which the city is considered liable. The balance, forty-one, were fraudulently obtained by some person or persons in New York, and the holders must look to such person or persons for redress. Bills to the amount of $200 were audited for taking care of a case of small pox recently brought into the city.

The Wisconsin is authorized to say that ex-governor Doty has not been and will not be a candidate for congress from the northern district, as has been reported in certain quarters.

Business in our streets is beginning to resume its accustomed life and activity. The harvest has been a long and busy one, giving our friends from the country hardly time to come and do their necessary trading. The consequence was, quiet times in town. This quiet is now disturbed by the "noise and confusion" of business, and what with the teams, and the improvements going on in the streets, they are kept nearly blocked up. The grain trade has opened brisk, and prices are exceedingly advantageous to farmers.

Some important errors occurred in our yesterday's paper, both in the news and in the advertising departments. The advertisements "stand corrected." In the article in reference to the amount of pine lumber saved at Mr. Norris' mill, it should have been 10,000 feet per day, instead of being left for the reader to infer that it was so much per week.

The feeling which ought to animate the whigs and anti-Nebraska men of the north at the present juncture, is very happily pointed out by the Boston Atlas, in the course of some remarks calling the attention of the whigs of Massachusetts to the state convention; then to be held the next day. It says:

"The signs of the times are propitious. The elections which have just occurred are encouraging. The result in North Carolina is just what we expected, and is not calculated to create any alarm. On the contrary, we hail the result as a happy omen. It teaches us the north just very truly itself for the maintenance of just principles. On the question of slavery the south will always be found united. This is a significant fact, by which we should profit. Let us at the north present a united front and we have nothing to fear. We have a numerical majority, and if we will show as much zeal for freedom as they do for slavery, the south will soon learn to respect our rights. Our safety is in our own efforts. If we come up to the work like men, and show them that while we will not encroach upon their rights, we will submit to no encroachments upon ours, the whole matter will be settled at once. We trust that a voice will go out from the convention, which will show that we are resolved to stand by the constitution, and repel any and all attempts to make us a great slaveholding republic. And in the exercise of this feeling we trust that they will show a determination to elect none to office who are not true to the claims of the north—the claims of freedom. We have a glorious opportunity of striking a blow for freedom, and we flatter ourselves that it will not be unimproved."

MISREPRESENTATION.—The Dodge County Republican, in publishing "by request," a call for the republican congressional convention to be held at Waupun, takes the occasion for the first time, to define its position, and feels called upon to misrepresent that party and its doings at Madison. It is very late in the day to publish anything of that kind, and shows well how hard-pushed the Nebraskites are. The first charge made by the Republican is contained in the following paragraph:

Now we do not believe there is a sensible man in the state who is not opposed to the extension of slavery, yet we believe the convention was very thinly attended, and it was for the reason that it was known to have originated with men who seek to rule or ruin, and who got up the movement for the sole purpose of their own aggrandizement, knowing full well their pretended object was only to deceive those who only look at things superficially, and who are ready to fall in with all new fangled notions, especially when there is any chance of making anything thereby.

It is admitted by every fair man, that the convention was both large and respectable, and if there ever was a purely people's movement, this was one. There may have been such men in attendance as the Republican speaks of, but they were far from giving tone to the convention; these men may have had a hand in originating the meeting, but the people forestalled their further action in the premises.

Misrepresentation number two is as follows: In order that our readers who are not already posted in this matter may understand the complexity of that convention, we will state that it was composed entirely of whigs, free-soilers and abolitionists, not a democratic gracing it with his presence, unless it was to witness their maneuvers, and report their proceedings.

There were not only a large number of democrats in the convention, but many of them took an active part in the proceedings, fully and freely sympathizing with the objects which they had met to promote and approving the manner proposed to promote them. We know not how the Republican's statements pass in Dodge county, but his own party friends here would confront him in such statements as he makes above, and put their own personal knowledge against his random statements.

The drought is prevailing to a very wide extent, and coarser grains seem to be cut short throughout the eastern and middle states, and extending as far west as Michigan. We are informed both by the papers and from private intelligence that the potato crop in many instances will scarcely realize the seed, and the corn is literally dried up. How highly favored is our own state! The farmer has just finished the harvest of the most abundant crop of the finer grains ever produced in the state, and the promise for the corn and potato crop was never more flattering. The comparative ease with which corn is produced will make it a very profitable crop, if the prices are such as might be predicted from the failure in other states. We hear of many fields that have never felt the touch of the hoe since the planting time, that notwithstanding this bad farming will yield heavily. The following from the Detroit Enquirer of last Thursday shows a darker picture for Michigan:

Great drought is now prevailing throughout the state, threatening in many places to cut very short both corn and potatoes. The breadth of land in corn, the present season, is unusually large, and up to two weeks ago, a crop never looked more luxuriantly, or gave better promise, but the leaves now begin to curl and turn yellow, and the tops are dying out. In some cases, through large sections of country, farmers are cutting up this crop for fodder, having lost all hope of realizing anything like a yield from it; this is the case in the southern, western, and south-western part of Oakland county, and in the eastern part of Livingston.

The prevalent opinion among the more experienced farmers in this and adjoining counties, is that potatoes, which have not yet ripened, comprising all late planted potatoes, will be a failure. The vines are already dying fast. Feed and pasturage are giving out, and stubble fields are drying up.

The weather since Sunday has been uncomfortable hot.

Something New!!

brated Reel maker has just completed his new Organ Reel, upon which he is laboring for the last five years and expended more than six thousand dollars. This reel is different from all others in its composition, being much larger and having more power. It is intended for Church and Parlor Organs as manufactured by Messrs. J. F. Pease & Co. of New York.

An upright Organ action and of the shape of all Church Organs. The price will range from $175 to $300, depending upon the finish of the case. To churches in want of an instrument of that value we would say that they have more power than any common Organ costing $500.

J. F. Pease & Co., Janesville Wis., are interested in the manufacture and sale of these instruments, and are the only persons through whom they can be had. They will have one or more for exhibition, as early as Sept. 10, and after that a good assortment as soon as they can be manufactured.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

THE "PATENT SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON" combines economy, convenience, saving of labor, neatness and dispatch. One cent's worth of dry charcoal supplies fuel for a whole day's constant ironing. In the absence of charcoal, hard wood coals will answer the same purpose. Its employment is as well adapted to one room as another, or the open air. Those who use them are relieved from the excessive fatigue of placing the iron on the fire, and the exhausting heat of the room. Its use is not accompanied by the possibility of smutting the clothes, and leaves a finish and gloss unsurpassed. One half more can be done with it in the same time, and with less labor. In short, this invention keeps pace with the age of railroads, steamships and telegraphs. Its great lending idea being economy, convenience and saving of labor; and this invention has it in perfection. The buttons and tailors irons are constructed upon the same principle and possess equal superiority. Our friend Col. Saxe has the exclusive right to sell by wholesale in this state, Indiana and Michigan. None but his agents will be authorized to sell them. The patentees are Messrs. Cummings and Bliss, and their extensive manufactory is at Newark, New Jersey. This practical invention was patented in 1852, and in England, France, Belgium and Germany, in 1853; and is now being adopted, extensively, and we believe will soon find a place in all economical and appreciating families. After seeing fifty or sixty notices of this invention in the New England papers, (where it is now generally used,) also New York and Ohio papers, we select the following from the New York Observer, as being quite correct and plainly descriptive of this new article:

A SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON.—A new invention of this description has been submitted to our inspection and has been used by those in our service. It is somewhat larger than the ordinary flat-iron, and has a long and higher handle. The body of the iron is hollow, and so constructed as to hold a small quantity of ignited charcoal. A small damper at one extremity regulates the draft, and a little pipe at the other conveys away the impalpable fume that is generated. It is so arranged, that its supply of coal, small as it is, occupies one and a half or two hours in consumption, and keeps the iron for that length of time at a temperature, admitting of uninterrupted use. The bottom of the iron is beautifully smooth and highly polished. The advantages consist, 1st, in economy, one cent's worth of dry charcoal furnishing fuel for a whole day's ironing. 2d, Convenience, it being independent of stove or furnace, and therefore capable of being used in any part of the house. 3d, Saving of labor in avoiding the constantly recurring necessity of carrying the iron to and from the fire. 4th, Avoiding the fire of the iron, which is a decided improvement, and our only surprise is that it has not been thought of before. We hear the most favorable accounts of it from those who have employed it.

The above article may be found for sale at the hardware store of R. J. Richardson.

The mills have not yet got fairly to work on the new crop, but a beginning has been made. They are buying wheat, and paying high prices. We brought up a sample of white winter wheat to our office, for which $1.40 had been paid. If this does not hurry up the farmers who live near the city, and on the great thorough-fares to send or bring their wheat to market, we do not know what will. Some four or five hundred barrels of new flour have been ground this week, and we understand all the mills will go into operation on Monday, when business will be lively on the canal.—Wisconsin, Saturday.

BULL VS. BEAR.—The Grass Valley Telegraph has the following:

"The bull and bear fight at Iowa Hill, on the 4th of July, was equal to the most sanguine expectation. Experienced vaqueros placed the animals in the ring without difficulty. The bull was wild, and the bear grizzly of large size, was caught a few weeks since. The instant the animals beheld each other they made a spring, the bear rushing himself to strike, and the bull lowering his head for a plunge. The contest was tremendous, and in about twenty minutes the bull, with one ear bitten off, his nose torn and neck severely mangled, laid his ferocious adversary completely dead in the centre of the arena. This owner of the bull now offers to let him fight any bear not exceeding him in weight, that can be produced, for a wager of any sum between $1,000 and $5,000.

N. P. Willis has retired from the Home Journal, and in his valedictory announces that he has no longer any hope of recovering his health.—His disease is consumption.

DERANGED MAIL.—We saw at the post office this morning, 14 canvas bags filled with bound books, and addressed to Augustus Cesar Dodge of Burlington, Iowa.

No wonder mails are deranged when they are burdened with whole libraries. Augustus Cesar, however, having met his Drutis, we shall not hear as often from him hereafter.—Chicago Journal, 16th.

THE CALIFORNIA INDIAN RESERVATION has become a scene of singular prosperity. The Indians appear to work with the utmost cheerfulness and alacrity in their various occupations, of driving teams, feeding threshing machines, attending the crops, etc. Their wheat crop is enormous, averaging thirty-five bushels to the acre, and estimated to be worth, according to prices at Los Angeles, from $300,000 to $100,000. Indians arrive daily in small parties from various parts of the state, and though each tribe speaks a different dialect, they thrive harmoniously together, such a thing as a quarrel or fight never happening among them. Capt. P. E. Conner, in a recent letter from the reservation, says that a happier set of beings than these Indians, it has never been his lot to see.

Let the Horn be Blown!!

"Sound the loud trumpet of our land and our sea,"

WHEELLOCK'S triumphant, and ever shall be."

This is the middle of the nineteenth century, the first half of which has produced more change in our mode of living than any fifty years of our Christian Era.

The great controlling power of this age is its commerce—indeed, this may be truly called the commercial age.

Its use is not accompanied by the possibility of smutting the clothes, and leaves a finish and gloss unsurpassed. One half more can be done with it in the same time, and with less labor. In short, this invention keeps pace with the age of railroads, steamships and telegraphs. Its great lending idea being economy, convenience and saving of labor; and this invention has it in perfection. The buttons and tailors irons are constructed upon the same principle and possess equal superiority. Our friend Col. Saxe has the exclusive right to sell by wholesale in this state, Indiana and Michigan. None but his agents will be authorized to sell them. The patentees are Messrs. Cummings and Bliss, and their extensive manufactory is at Newark, New Jersey. This practical invention was patented in 1852, and in England, France, Belgium and Germany, in 1853; and is now being adopted, extensively, and we believe will soon find a place in all economical and appreciating families. After seeing fifty or sixty notices of this invention in the New England papers, (where it is now generally used,) also New York and Ohio papers, we select the following from the New York Observer, as being quite correct and plainly descriptive of this new article:

A SELF-HEATING SMOOTHING IRON.—A new invention of this description has been submitted to our inspection and has been used by those in our service. It is somewhat larger than the ordinary flat-iron, and has a long and higher handle. The body of the iron is hollow, and so constructed as to hold a small quantity of ignited charcoal. A small damper at one extremity regulates the draft, and a little pipe at the other conveys away the impalpable fume that is generated. It is so arranged, that its supply of coal, small as it is, occupies one and a half or two hours in consumption, and keeps the iron for that length of time at a temperature, admitting of uninterrupted use. The bottom of the iron is beautifully smooth and highly polished. The advantages consist, 1st. In economy, one cent's worth of dry charcoal furnishing fuel for a whole day's ironing. 2d. Convenience, it being independent of stove or furnace, and therefore capable of being used in any part of the house. 3d. Saving of labor in avoiding the constantly recurring necessity of carrying the iron to and from the fire. 4th. Avoiding the fire of the iron, which is a decided improvement, and our only surprise is that it has not been thought of before. We hear the most favorable accounts of it from those who have employed it.

The above article may be found for sale at the hardware store of R. J. Richardson.

The mills have not yet got fairly to work on the new crop, but a beginning has been made. They are buying wheat, and paying high prices. We brought up a sample of white winter wheat to our office, for which $1.40 had been paid. If this does not hurry up the farmers who live near the city, and on the great thorough-fares to send or bring their wheat to market, we do not know what will. Some four or five hundred barrels of new flour have been ground this week, and we understand all the mills will go into operation on Monday, when business will be lively on the canal.—Wisconsin, Saturday.

BULL VS. BEAR.—The Grass Valley Telegraph has the following:

"The bull and bear fight at Iowa Hill, on the 4th of July, was equal to the most sanguine expectation. Experienced vaqueros placed the animals in the ring without difficulty. The bull was wild, and the bear grizzly of large size, was caught a few weeks since. The instant the animals beheld each other they made a spring, the bear rushing himself to strike, and the bull lowering his head for a plunge. The contest was tremendous, and in about twenty minutes the bull, with one ear bitten off, his nose torn and neck severely mangled, laid his ferocious adversary completely dead in the centre of the arena. This owner of the bull now offers to let him fight any bear not exceeding him in weight, that can be produced, for a wager of any sum between $1,000 and $5,000.

N. P. Willis has retired from the Home Journal, and in his valedictory announces that he has no longer any hope of recovering his health.—His disease is consumption.

DERANGED MAIL.—We saw at the post office this morning, 14 canvas bags filled with bound books, and addressed to Augustus Cesar Dodge of Burlington, Iowa.

No wonder mails are deranged when they are burdened with whole libraries. Augustus Cesar, however, having met his Drutis, we shall not hear as often from him hereafter.—Chicago Journal, 16th.

THE CALIFORNIA INDIAN RESERVATION has become a scene of singular prosperity. The Indians appear to work with the utmost cheerfulness and alacrity in their various occupations, of driving teams, feeding threshing machines, attending the crops, etc. Their wheat crop is enormous, averaging thirty-five bushels to the acre, and estimated to be worth, according to prices at Los Angeles, from $300,000 to $100,000. Indians arrive daily in small parties from various parts of the state, and though each tribe speaks a different dialect, they thrive harmoniously together, such a thing as a quarrel or fight never happening among them. Capt. P. E. Conner, in a recent letter from the reservation, says that a happier set of beings than these Indians, it has never been his lot to see.

[Concluded.]

Far up the heavens rolled the flames of the house and barn; and the few waving eyes in the region knew how it must be, but there was none to help. Slowly up into the back country were walking, as day began to dawn, Harvey Loomis and Joseph Collins. They had stopped to embrace, to weep, and to laugh more than once.

"Twas nobly done, Harvey; but when you first dunked the bell, what did you expect?"

"I was in hopes you would recollect the old bell at once, and smell it out, and at a single bound come to me."

"Well, I did not—I was sent. But when I got there, why did you fire your gun in my face and knock my lantern out of my hand?"

"I put out your light to make it dark, you rascal! and I fired the gun, so that if you had been retaken, they might suppose you were taken as a prisoner, and not hang you as a deserter."

"You cunning fellow! what if they had taken you?"

"Hanging on the yard-arm of course; I had made up my mind for that."

"Noble fellow! may God reward you, I never can. Well now you go home, Harvey, and tell Lucy—and watch her closely—if she's got her heart on any other point of the compass be faithful and let me know it. I will go and show myself to father and mother, and if I don't hear from you, I shall be at your house by ten o'clock. Mind now about Lucy!"

"Get out, you jealous fellow; it's more than half because I love Lucy that I have had my neck smelt of hemp for the last six months!"

That morning after breakfast a usual, old Mr. Collins had read in the presence of his wife and little Molly, an orphan child of color, the word of God, and then they knelt in prayer. Just as he was about to kneel, the old parrot cried out, "Joseph! oh Joseph! and Lucy Loomis too!"

The words meant nothing in the mouth of the bird, but they led the train of his thoughts in that channel. After praying for things which filled the heart, he added, "And now, oh Lord! remember, we beseech thee, our poor wanderer, if he be still in the land of the living; whether on the land or on the deep, in the hospital or in the prison, oh remember him. We would pray, in all submission, that we may see his face once more and lean upon him as the staff of our age; but if this may never be, our prayer is that we may meet him in heaven, to part with him no more!"

While the good old man was thus praying, with many tears, the door softly opened, and the young man stood within it. When the family arose from their knees, there stood their son bathed in tears! The old man lifted up his hands in utter amazement, but the mother sobbed, "My son! my son!" and fell upon his neck.

A few hours after this there was a group gathered at Mr. John Loomis', who came with a kind of trembling as men might be supposed to feel who were conscious of being in a dream and were afraid of being awakened. There were old Mr. Collins and wife, who contrived to keep near their son as if afraid he might escape, or change into something besides himself. Then there were old Mr. Loomis and wife, who felt a quiet joy in sympathizing with those whose emotions were deep. Harvey said he believed he felt as foolish as did Tomser, when in his puppyhood he chased something and it turned out to be a real con! As for Miss Lucy, she tried hard to appear sedate and quiet, but the color would come and go, and she felt nervous and restless, and had no command of herself till she had gone out and had a good joyful time of weeping. Harvey was the first hero, and he had to relate how he had heard a rumor that Joseph was in some ship on our coast, and that he had visited every ship that had come into the sound under pretense of selling something.

"It has all turned out right," said he, "except the burning of deacon Mayo's house and barn. I feel grieved to think I was probably the cause of that—by showing the cattle and enticing them ashore."

"You take to yourself too much credit," said Joseph, "for the orders were given to land and search for cattle and fire the buildings before you allowed the cattle; that I can testify."

"Very good—for though some of us wanted you back, I don't know as any one would have subscribed a whole barn," said Harvey looking archly at Lucy.

"I think you have just made it out that one life was hazarded," replied Lucy.

"Nonsense—more love of excitement—that's all! But come now, Mr. Joe Strange, or whatever your name is aboard, let us now have your story. What have you been at these four long years? All of us except Lucy, are dying with impatience to know how you came to be on the deck of a ship of war, that was fighting against your country?"

"Some people can throw apples to monkeys, though they would not themselves do the mischief which the monkeys do. But to mystery: 'Four years ago, at the age of twenty, you know, I owned and commanded the pretty little schooner 'Good-Speed.' Owing to our ports being closed by the embargo, called 'Jefferson's gag,' I went to the West Indies, and became a carrier from one island to another. I had been gone a year and had done very well, when I remitted my earnings to my father—"

"They are laid up safe for you," said the old man.

"I was making a voyage from Trinidad to Porto Rico. I had but a mate, an American, an English sailor, and a Spaniard, for my crew. The mate and Spaniard constituted one watch, and the Englishman and myself the other. On the third night as I stood at the helm, I heard a noise in the cabin, and told Bailey to step down and see if some of the barrels were rolling. Before he could execute my order, I saw the Spaniard come up from the cabin with a hurried step. By the moonlight, I saw a large Spanish knife in his hand. As he made towards me, I met him, parried his thrust, and knocked him down. We then wrested the knife from his hand, and threw it overboard. Leaping upon his feet, he bounded down into the hold. We put on the ha ches, and felt that he was safe. Immediately I procured a light and went into the cabin, and there was poor Hans, my mate, sitting up in his berth, with his skull broken, and a part of his brains protruding. As I was trying to bind it up, he said, 'Don't bind up my eyes, I can't see him when he comes again.' They were the last words he ever spoke, though he lived three days. There were now only two of us to sail the schooner, and I was every day expecting a storm. On the second night after this, I thought the 'Good-Speed' sailed badly. On trying the pump, I found there was water in the hold. I opened the hatches and leaped down to see if she leaked, and found four feet of water in my vessel. The mate also was missing and I now knew that the Spaniard had scuttled the vessel, intending to sink her. I got out, and aching a light and a loaded gun, once more went down and called for my Spanish friend, saying I would shoot him dead if he made the least resistance. He had crept away forward, and was high and dry, but gave himself up on my presenting the gun. We took him on deck and bound him, after receiving his confession that he intended to kill all and take the schooner as his own, and falling in that, he intended to sink us, and that he had so scuttled the vessel that she could not live many hours longer. The schooner soon became unmanageable, but in four days after our troubles, she was driven upon an island. The mate had died the day before, but his corpse lay in the cabin. The people, magistrates, &c., of the coast came down and boarded us. They spoke the Spanish and I only the English language. The Spanish rascal told his story, and I tried to tell mine. The result was, that after being allowed to bury my poor mate, without collar or shroud, we were all taken to prison. On entering the prison our account was taken down word for word by the magistrate. At the end of seven and a half months, our story was again written down and compared with the first and with each other's. Then we had our trial. Without funds or friends, I got the interpreter's good graces, so that he aided us greatly. We were acquitted finally, and the Spaniard left in irons in prison. Feeble and worn down with excitement and imprisonment, I knew not what to do. At length a vessel touched there; I agreed to work my passage home before the mast. While on the voyage, we were overhauled by a British man-of-war, and my name not being on her protection papers, I was claimed as a British seaman and taken on board the ship."

"Did they flog you as a deserter?" asked Harvey with his fists clenched.

"No, they only claimed me as a British sailor, and did not pretend that I had ever belonged to a man-of-war. I claimed to be an American, but this did not avail. Two-thirds of the men would swear they were Americans, if they could get released by it. There I was when the war broke out, and there I remained committing myself to God, and feeling sure that I should escape before long. But when we came into the Sound, and I saw the blue hills of Connecticut, my heart leaped, and I came near betraying myself. God be praised, that owing to Harvey's cool courage, and persevering efforts, I am here to see you all alive, and to praise God for his goodness."

"And you'll never go to sea again?" said Lucy, in tears.

"Not if you do all you can to keep me at home."

Lucy blushed but uttered no rebuke!

SERVANT GIRLS.—Some of the married ladies of this city experience great difficulty in procuring servant maids to suit them—they find plenty that are industrious, tidy, and attentive enough—but few that are right enough. The demand for ugly looking servant girls is enormous: the supply don't begin to equal the demand. Beauty in such situations is always turned out to starve. The intelligence offices are always full of good-looking girls, for they are always out of situations, while those that are frightfully pock-marked pay a high premium and secure extra wages from the "Madams."

Husbands in such cases are less fastidiously disposed—they do not by any means insist on ugliness as an indispensable qualification in a female domestic. This is a very queer, isn't it? We wonder what it does mean? There is a family of our acquaintance that has turned away ten girls in about as many weeks. They were all engaged by the gentleman, all profoundly good looking, and all discharged by the lady. The result of the affair is that the family go without help, for the man of the house has constantly an advertisement in the papers for a "young, smart, tidy girl, to do the work of a small family." He has plenty of applications at his office, down town, and when he finds one that harmonizes with his ideas, he sends up for the approval of Madame. The fellow is obstinate and knows that this kind of "headling" secures a class of custom that cannot receive the sanction at home, because they all have the objectionable clause—beauty. Men are apt to take a lively interest and sympathize with poor girls who are obliged to work for a living, and are sometimes a little liberal in their attentions, but we see no reason why married women should be so very particularly prejudiced against pretty chambermaids, &c. If a girl expects to get a place, the sooner she exposes herself to the small-pox the better.—New York Sunday Atlas.

The Washington Union publishes with great parade of virtuous indignation, a letter from John Forney—dubbed a long by way of derision, as everybody in Georgia who has not a more respectable title, is called Major—in which he attempts to break the force of a blasting charge made against him by a Harrisburg paper, that he permitted his sister to labor in a factory for three dollars a week, while he himself was squandering thousands of dollars a year in debauchery and the indulgence of profligate habits. We suggested a doubt of the truth of this allegation, when giving it publicity, although one might be excused for suspecting a fellow of any dirtiness, who was capable of advising a friend to commit subornation of perjury. But it appears by Forney's letter, that it was substantially true. He acknowledges that his sister is working in a factory, but avers his readiness to support her, if she would accept eleemosynary aid at his hands. She is probably a conscientious woman, and hesitates about receiving money procured by the means to which such persons as her brother resort at Washington. She is the more respectable person of the two, and Forney evidently so regards her; for he speaks of her position as an operative as one entailing her to high esteem in Lancaster county.—Buffalo Commercial.

EQUITY APPLIED TO DUELING.—These are the conditions, with the reasons therefor, upon which a challenged party of large form, proposed to take the field against a challenger of smaller size:

1. That the weapons to be employed should be pistols.
2. That the distance shall be regulated by the laws of perspective. That is to say, we shall take our station at ten paces from each other; I will then fire at your slender body, which I may possibly miss, as it is not an inch in diameter larger than a tree which I have often failed to hit at that distance, when my nerves were perfectly quiet. On the event of missing you, I will then retire, say about a hundred yards, which, by the laws of perspective, will reduce my size to an equality with yours. Then you can take your chance at me. Or, if you insist on it, you may have the first fire at the distance of four hundred yards, and then, if not hit, I will approach within ten paces, and try my luck on your person. I think you cannot fail to see the perfect equity of this arrangement. It seems to be both reasonable and philosophical, while it would be a monstrous demand on your part, to require me, with my levitation person, to stand and be shot at, at ten paces, for which there would be no equivalent in shooting at you no way remarkable for size.

The conditions were rejected and the duel unfought.

COMMON COUNCIL.—The most important items of business in the council Saturday evening were authorizing the bridge committee to adopt any plan for a bridge which they shall deem best, and empowering them to close a contract for building it. A tax collectable this fall was voted to meet the cost of construction. Ald. Jackson made a statement as to the bonds of the city issued to the Valley railroad company, by which it appeared that there are only forty-six outstanding for which the city is considered liable. The balance, forty-one, were fraudulently obtained by some person or persons in New York, and the holders must look to such person or persons for redress. Bills to the amount of $260 were audited for taking care of a case of small pox recently brought into the city.

The Wisconsin is authorized to say that ex-governor Doty has not been and will not be a candidate for congress from the northern district, as has been reported in certain quarters.

Business in our streets is beginning to resume its accustomed life an activity. The harvest has been a long and busy one, giving our friends from the country hardly time to come and do their necessary trading. The consequence was, quiet times in town. This quiet is now disturbed by the "noise and confusion" of business, and what with the teams, and the improvements going on in the streets, they are kept nearly blocked up. The grain trade has opened brisk, and prices are exceedingly advantageous to farmers.

Some important errors occurred in yesterday's paper, both in the news and in the advertising departments. The advertisements "stand corrected." In the article in reference to the amount of pine lumber sawed at Mr. Norris' mill, it should have been 10,000 feet per day, instead of being left for the reader to infer that it was so much per week.

The feeling which ought to animate the whigs and anti-Nebraska men of the north at the present juncture, is very happily pointed out by the Boston Atlas, in the course of some remarks calling the attention of the whigs of Massachusetts to the state convention, then to be held the next day. It says:

"The signs of the times are propitious. The elections which have just occurred are encouraging. The result in North Carolina is just what we expected, and so is not calculated to create any alarm. On the contrary, we hail the result as a happy omen. It teaches us the north must rely upon itself for the maintenance of its principles. On the question of slavery the south will always be found united. This is a significant fact, by which we should profit. Let us at the north present a united front and we have nothing to fear. We have a numerical majority, and if we will show as much zeal for freedom as they do for slavery, the south will soon learn to respect our rights. Our safety is in our own efforts. If we come up to the work like men, and show them that while we will not encroach upon their rights, we will submit to no encroachments upon ours, the whole matter will be settled at once. We trust that a voice will go out from the convention, which will show that we are resolved to stand by the constitution, and repel any and all attempts to make us a great slaveholding republic. And in the exercise of this feeling we trust that they will show a determination to elect none to office who are not true to the claims of the north—the claims of freedom. We have a glorious opportunity of striking a blow for freedom, and we flatter ourselves that it will not be unimproved."

MISREPRESENTATION.—The Dodge County Republican, in publishing "by request," a call for the republican congressional convention to be held at Waupun, takes the occasion for the first time, to define its position, and feels called upon to misrepresent that party and its doings at Madison. It is very late in the day to publish anything of that kind, and shows well how hard-pushed the Nebraskites are. The first charge made by the Republican is contained in the following paragraph:

Now we do not believe there is a sensible man in the state who is not opposed to the extension of slavery, yet we believe the convention was very thinly attended, and it was for the reason that it was known to have originated with men who seek to rule or ruin, and who got up the movement for the sole purpose of their own aggrandizement, knowing full well their pretended object was only to deceive those who only look at things superficially, and who are ready to fall in with all new fangled notions, especially when there is any chance of making anything thereby.

It is admitted by every fair man, that the convention was both large and respectable, and if there ever was a purely people's movement, this was one. There may have been such men in attendance as the Republican speaks of, but they were far from giving tone to the convention; these men may have had a hand in originating the meeting, but the people forestalled their further action in the premises.

Misrepresentation number two is as follows:

In order that our readers who are not already posted in this matter may understand the complexion of that convention, we will state that it was composed entirely of whigs, free-soilers and abolitionists, not a democrat gracing it with his presence, unless it was to witness their manoeuvres, and report their proceedings.

There were not only a large number of democrats in the convention, but many of them took an active part in the proceedings, fully and freely sympathizing with the objects which they had met to promote and approving the manner proposed to promote them. We know not how the Republican's statements pass in Dodge County, but his own party friends here would confront him in such statements as lie makes above, and put their own personal knowledge against his random statements.

The drought is prevailing to a very wide extent, and corn and grain seem to be cut short throughout the eastern and middle states, and extending as far west as Michigan. We are informed both by the papers and from private intelligence that the potato crop in many instances will scarcely realize the seed, and the corn is literally dried up. How highly favored is our own state! The farmer has just finished the harvest of the most abundant crop of the finer grains ever produced in the state, and the promise for the corn and potato crop was never more glittering. The comparative ease with which corn is produced will make it a very profitable crop, if the prices are such as might be predicted from the failure in other states. We hear of many fields that have never felt the touch of the hoe since the planting time, that notwithstanding this bad farming will yield heavily. The following from the Detroit Enquirer of last Thursday shows a darker picture for Michigan:

Great drought is now prevailing throughout the state, threatening in many places to cut every short both corn and potatoes. The breadth of land in corn, the present season, is unusually large, and up to two weeks ago, a crop never looked more luxuriantly, or gave better promise, but the leaves now begin to curl and turn yellow, and the tops are dying out. In some cases, through large sections of country, farmers are cutting up this crop for fodder, having lost all hope of realizing anything like a yield from it; this is the case in the southern, western, and south-western part of Oakland county, and in the eastern part of Livingston.

The prevalent opinion among the more experienced farmers in this and adjoining counties, is that potatoes, which have not yet ripened, comprising all late planted potatoes, will be a failure. The vines are already drying fast. Feed and pasturage are giving out, and stubble fields are drying up.

The weather since Sunday has been uncomfortable hot.

Something New!!

MR. CHARLES AUSTIN, the celebrated Reel maker has just completed his new Organ Reel, upon which he has labored for the last five years and expended more than six thousand dollars. The new Reel is of a different style from any composition, being much larger and having more power. It is intended for Church and Parlor Organs as manufactured by Messrs. Austin & Co. These Organs have an upright (Organ) action and are of the shape of all Church Organs. The price will range from $175 to $300, depending upon the finish of the case. To churches in want of an instrument of that value we would say that they have more power than any common Organ could furnish.

J. F. Pease & Co., Janesville Wis., are interested in the manufacture and sale of these instruments, and are the only persons through whom they can be had. They will have one or more for exhibition as early as Sept. 1st, and offer that a good assortment as soon as they can be manufactured.
